Training Department Asst. Prof.. Dr. Nileshbhai Pandya, following the topic of sensory-emotional development and character formation, said that the mind is dominant in the infant stage. This state is like fertile soil, on which what is sown grows quickly. What and what kind of seeds you want to plant in this land, is in your hands. Explained with examples what should be done to make a child intelligent, develop language, build character. He also told the family how important it is to tell a story every day for the child's emotional and language development.

Shishu Paramarshan Kendra Chief Coordinator Shri Dr. Rupambahen Upadhyay emphasized on the theme of action and experience based learning. She told that one of the main reasons for children's poor handwriting is that a child is held directly by a pencil when he enters school. Before entering school, giving a pencil to a children directly is not a good idea. Before giving pencil to write, children should do some specific activities related to the development of their hands and fingers which improves the development of their small and large muscles. Keeping such aspects in mind, many activities are done in the Shishu Paramarshan Kendra. Just as one action has to be done on time to mold our body based on time, a child also has to do one action repeatedly with patience for action and experience. She said that parents have to be ideal to make a child ideal.

Children's University hon. Chancellor Shri Harshad Q. Shah Sahib discussed about the medium of child education which was the most confusing subject for the parents. He said in his speech that the child's mother and family are themselves a school. Education should be in their mother language in which they understand the more. Place stories, nursery rhymes, discussions, etc. in dialogue.

Thanks were given by Shri Divyabehan Rawal, Co-Coordinator of Shishu Paramarshan Kendra. The entire program was managed by Asst. Prof. Shri Dharmanshubhai Vaidya.
